STATE NEWS.

The Kentucky University has over 400 students.

Longfellow is to be on exhibition at the Nashville races.

Henderson is building a new jail with twenty cells and a corridor.

Covington sold during the last four months 493,000 gallons of beer.

Col. J. P. Pryor has retired from the editorial chair of the Frankfort Freeman.

Mal. A. P. Wood, of Montgomery, is a Republican candidate for Congress in the Ninth District.

A greater area of land will be devoted to small grain this year than in several centuries in the State.

Burlington, Boone county, is to have a weekly paper called the Boone County Courier. Brown & Taggart publishers.

Ten colored citizens of Danville have subscribed $50 each to pay for the right of way for the Southern railroad through Boyle county.

The indications are strong that the Big Sandy and Lexington railroad will be put under contract in less than ninety days, from Mt. Sterling to Licking river.

The Democratic Convention, which met at Elizabethtown, on the 19th, resulted in the nomination of Hon. W. B. Read, of Leane, the present incumbent, as the candidate for Congress from the Fourth District.

The vacancy in the Senate.

The death of the Hon. Garrett Davis renders necessary the appointment by the Gov. of some one to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate, created hereby.

In looking over the list of our public men, and considering the condition of political parties; the histories of parties and men; there is no man in Kentucky whose appointment would give such general satisfaction and delight, and gladden so many hearts as that of our own fellow citizen Hon. Thos. W. Varnon.

Through life he was the bosom friend of our dead Senator Davis; and did more to elevate him to the position he so highly honored, than any other man in our State. Their political opinions were the same. Mr. Varnon is a legislator of large experience—of sound and practical ability, and eminently a working man, rather than one of words; which is so much needed in a Senator, at this time.

Such an appointment would confer honor upon the State, and bring into the canvass in the various Congressional districts as well as the Presidential contest, the enthusiasm of the union element of the Kentucky Democracy. Central Kentucky therefore hopes now, the appointment of Mr. Varnon, first for the public good, recently, because of his location, and lastly, because such an appointment would add greatly to the strength of Kentucky Democracy.

The Germans in the South.

It is clear enough now that the German vote is making upon the Liberal ticket. Mr. Greeley will get eight-tenths of it. The admirable speech of Mr. Hasaunck settled the question, and, coupled with the speeches and efforts of Mr. Schurz, gives us a pretty nearly correct German union on reform—Courier Journal.

And thus it goes. Wherever the German element is strong; as in St. Louis, Cincinnati, New York, and many other cities and counties in the North and West; it will be found that Carl Schurz, and Gen. Hasaunck have made an impression for good, in behalf of the Liberal-Democratic ticket. The "tidal-wave" is still rolling onward, and as the election approaches, the German population of our country become more and more favorably impressed with the importance of securing the election of the Greeley ticket.

For a time the Germans seemed loath to depart from the Republican ranks, but now that their leading men have gone over to the Liberals, they go with them.

Louisville Colored Fair.

Talk about enterprise and friendship? The first day of the colored fair at Louisville, had all the proceedings published in full in the Democratic papers of that city, while the Louisville Commercial, the poor old friend and partner of the colored people, wholly failed to publish a single word about it, and next day it came out with a tame and pitiful apology for its neglect, and said the matter was clearly overlooked, for which they claimed to be very sorry. Sorry indeed! Was not the fair of your colored friends of sufficient importance to impress your reporters with the fact? Ah, Commercial, your excuse is too excuse at all, than the one you did. The colored people will find out one of these days who their true friends are, and when they do find out that fact, they will act in accordance with it. Did you overlook the white-folks fair—the white-folks Exposition, or any thing else the white-folks ever did? Not at all! Not at all! Why forget the other?

Brutality's Appointments.

We have been informed that Mr. W. O. Bradley, the Republican candidate for Congress in this district, has published a list of appointments entirely different from that of his competitor, Judge Durham, and that, too, after Judge D's was out and had been out for some time. Now if this be true, why did Mr. Bradley do it, and write his competitor to meet him at all his appointments? We hope that matter will be arranged so that these gentlemen meet at each place and discuss politics and the candidates. If this be done, more interest will be taken in the race, the people would flock in far greater numbers to hear them, and a much larger vote would be polled.

Death of Garrett Davis.

This distinguished Kentuckian died at Paris, Ky., on last Monday, after a painful illness; superinduced, probably, by his long and earnest efforts in behalf of his imperiled country, in the Senate of the United States.

Senator Davis was a man of splendid ability as a lawyer and Statesman, and noble as his rather impetuous nature was a man of indomitable energy and will, which greatly attached him to his people. No State ever had a truer defender, no country an abler exponent of her rights. He has gone to the grave full of years and honor, for he has lived out his three score years and twelve and died, lamented by all who knew him well. His place in the Senate chamber of our nation will not be filled by an abler or more sincere advocate of the right, or a more earnest foe of all that is little and wrong.

Standing, as he did, amidst the raging conflicts of the Senate, the friend of justice, while the enemies of our common country quailed beneath the strokes of his always ready lance. Let Kentucky mourn his death, as she will, with unaffected sorrow.

Credit.

The breaking down of the credit system is demanded by the times.

Such a thing is greatly needed, greatly desired by the people, or at least by those who know full well, by sorrowful experience, the great evils of the credit system. Economy is said to be equivalent to riches, and no way can economy be more successfully brought about than by the inability of a person to procure credit. Credit fosters a spirit of extravagance, by inducing individuals to purchase those things which they could well dispense with. Credit fosters a spirit of useless expenditure, which finally results disastrously to those who obtain it. Thoroughly establish the cash system, and those individuals will buy only such articles as they can pay for at the time of the purchase. Buying for cash alone, the purchaser can hardly afford to sell on time, unless he has a surplus capital, which few persons possess in these days. Litigation for debt would be unknown, if the cash system was adopted. If adopted there should be no possible departure from its rule. Credit should be made absolute and unconditional, with no "variables" or "shadows of turning." It should simply be inflexible, and not departed from under any pretext whatever. Otherwise, the whole would result in an ignominious failure.

Another Candidate.

Immediately after the withdrawal of Mr. C. F. Burman from the Congressional canvass as the Radical candidate; the party held another Convention in Danville and nominated W. O. Bradley, Esq., of Lancaster, Ky. Now this is precisely what we told them they ought to have done at the start. We are a little surprised, however, to see that Mr. Bradley has accepted the very doubtful honor, for our notion of the young man was that he would not be second choice in such a play. However, Mr. Bradley has something to gain and nothing to lose, except his election.

He will make a much better canvasser and better race than Burman could; but his defeat will be inevitable. He is young in years, and young in Radicalism, being converted to that awful faith only a year or two ago. We give him credit for sincerity of purpose, however, and doubt not that he feels better in his present campaign than he did in the camp of good old Democracy.

Pictures of Greeley.

For some time past we have had a stereotype out of the great patriot, and statesman, Greeley, at the head of our columns. Before placing it there, we had never seen the man. Now that we have seen him; we are fully satisfied that the "cut" does his handsome, noble, and generous face great justice; and hence we take it down. No mortal pencil can do his lineaments justice. He is by far the handsomest and best looking of all our public men. No one can form a correct idea of the man until he is seen, and until his manly hand is clasped. He at once impresses you with the firm conviction that he is more than his warmest and zealous admirers claim for him. That he is destined to rule over us for the next four years, no sensible man can doubt.

Adams.

This man, who was placed upon the Democratic ticket at Louisville as a candidate for Vice Presidency; has at last, after much tribulation and misgivings, consented to accept the very doubtful honor of the position. Poor Adams! Why have you been so foolish? Is honor so cheap, and glory so shallow, that you have found it in your heart to accept the place allotted to you by a handful of discontented men who would, if they could, sell their birthright for a miserable mess of pottage? Coming generations—and the very one succeeding the present; will forget that you or your Democratic party ever had a local habitation and a name—if, in fact, they ever had such a thing.

Central Kentucky Trotting Races.

The Kentucky Advocate says: The trotting race to come off in this place in this place on Friday and Saturday, 27th and 28th inst., promises to be a fine sport. We learn that each race will be contested, and several of them very warmly. The liberal purse that are offered are creditable to the Association, while the second money will prove a nice safe for those who cannot get the first. The officers of the Association are gentlemen whose very names are guarantees of honest, fair, and square dealing. They will see to it that gentlemen are secure in their rights and jobs, and find a place on the outside of the gate.

Greeley at Pittsburgh.

We publish on our first page a short but admirable speech from Mr. Greeley, delivered at Pittsburgh the other day while on his way to Louisville. This speech has the true, wholesome, natural ring about it, which is not bound by any formal, political habit. The man, the patriot, the statesman, are all reflected in these words of truth and soberness. Don't fail to read it.

Public Speaking.

M. J. Durham, Democratic Candidate for Congress in the 8th District, will speak at the following places and times:

Perryville, Wayne co., Tuesday, Oct. 1, 10 a.m. to 12 m. Ford, Wayne co., Tuesday, Oct. 1, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Madison, Wayne co., Wednesday, Oct. 2, 10 a.m. to 12 m. Monticello, Wayne co., Wednesday, Oct. 2, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Mill Springs, Wayne co., Thursday, Oct. 3, 10 a.m. to 12 m. True Democrat.

The Bourbon Louisville paper, like its party, has "gone where the woodbine twined." It was "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity." Requiescat in pace.

The election of State officers in Indiana takes place on the eighth of next month. A liberal triumph is certain. The Radicals are sending thousands of Kentucky negroes there to cast their votes. They are all marked and will pay the penalty—even Morton cannot save them.

The law abolishing all stamp duties imposed by schedule "B" except tax of two cents on bank checks, drafts or orders, takes effect tomorrow, October the first.

The jury in the Laurie Faircase is now complete. It was selected from nearly one thousand men.

The sale of the personal estate of Samuel Holmes, deceased, will take place at his late residence today (Friday). Cattle dealers especially should look out.

A general change in our advertising columns, in this week, has been made, and we hope our Western subscribers will excuse us.

We have received during the past week several interesting letters from various parts of the country containing many of them the glad news, "Here's your two dollars."

"Fish of one kind and flesh of another" is verified as a true maxim, when an Express Company refuse to ship a "pup" for John Smith, but carry a dog cheerfully for Bill Jones.

Mr. Dineen writes to say that he will open this school on next Monday, and hopes that all who expect to attend will begin with the opening of the school. He and his excellent aide arrived in our town on Wednesday last.

It may not be generally known that G. I. Merriam, at 8 N. D. Myers' shop, is prepared to button with cane in the very best manner all kinds of coats. This is certainly a blessing to the community.

We are informed that one of our young merchants, John H. Craig, had the honor of clapping the hand of Mr. Greeley the other day. The chickens need trouble themselves to meet him as fast as Johnnie is concerned. He is assuredly an honest man.

Col. Roy Stuart passed on exhibition at our office the other day several cases of white corn, one of which has 180 grains, and measures 8 1/2 inches in circumference. The others are fully 15 inches in length. If any of our farmers desire seed corn of a superior kind they should buy from Uncle Roy.

We are exceedingly gratified to announce that the indications are that we will be compelled to drop but few of our subscribers for non-payment of dues. Those we drop will find their accounts in the hands of patient officers, who will perhaps wait, and perhaps not.

The Interior Journal credits the "Stanford Journal" with a benediction come at Crab Orchard. We listen to deny the allegation and deny the allegation. Such slanderous communications always find a comfortable lodgment in our waste basket.

The Kentucky Library drawing will take place tomorrow. It is said that over 75,000 tickets have been sold. The capital prize will be about $75,000. The trouble is, we don't know what to do with so much money, unless we make the INTERIOR JOURNAL a daily.

We will publish next week an interesting letter from California, written by a gentleman who left this country in 1840 and located in Solano county, and has been for the past twenty years engaged in horticulture. We will also have in a few days a list of specimens of California fruits, which our friend has kindly expressed to us. Judge M. J. Durbin and Thomas Humber are especially requested to call and see and taste it.

Military. Mrs. L. T. Davies, representing representatives of three first-class military establishments left our town on Tuesday last for the city market, where they will purchase extensive stocks of goods. No town can boast of three more intelligent, more tasty and more competent ladies who follow this respectable and indispensable avocation. Visit Stanford next week, ladies if you desire to see something new.

The Wagon Line. A company of gentlemen propose to run from Nicholasville, the terminus of the Kentucky Central Railroad, to this place, a line of heavy road-wagons, every other day, for the purpose of transporting such goods as may be purchased in the city of Cincinnati, by our merchants and others. This step is deemed necessary, in order to enable our merchants to get their goods promptly and at rates lower than the present rates over the route via Louisville. We cannot see or calculate how it is that the L. & N. R. R. will not furnish transportation as rapidly and cheaply, as this wagon line from Nicholasville.

New Stage Line. We take pleasure in directing attention to the advertisement of R. W. Newland & Co. in this issue. We can assure the traveling public that their facilities for transporting passengers from the South and elsewhere are strictly first-class. And as for a careful and accurate stage driver, Lark Edge stands without a rival. He is strictly the right man in the right place, and in more than one respect the "flower of the year."

Tower Palace. We republish in our paper of today the conspicuous advertisement of J. M. Armstrong's great "Tower Palace" of clothing, 150 West Main street, Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. A's establishment is one of the features of the city—certainly the largest and finest clothing store in the South. His fall and winter stock is now open and embraces men's, youth's, boys' and children's clothing, ranging in size from three years to men of largest proportions. The assortment is immense and we would especially recommend our friends when visiting Louisville to call at "Tower Palace." If for nothing else than to see the handsome and most extensive clothing house in the State. We take pleasure in stating that our friend C. B. Barfield, formerly the efficient Life Insurance agent and so well known to our citizens, is not employed at Mr. Armstrong's magnificent establishment.

FROM PULASKI COUNTY.

Correspondence of the Interior Journal.

There has been quite a calm in our town since the fair, nothing to create a sensation except an occasional railroad or political speech.

Mr. Brown, the attorney for the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, spoke the Reform church here on the 19th. He talked well, and showed our people the advantages of a railroad through our county, and informed them, rather indirectly, that all kinds of donations would be thankfully received; such as money, ties, rock, sand or dirt. Our citizens have been made to believe that Cincinnati would not ask for donations; and why should we, when Mr. Brown says that the wealth of Louisville, compared with that of Cincinnati, is but a mere speck. However, our citizens have already given the right of way, and all do anything else that is right and proper for them to do in the premises.

R. C. WARREN. Assistant Greeley and Brown, had but a small crowd to hear. His speech in our town on Monday last, being county court day with several interesting cases before his honor Judge Zachary, in the nature of hastily arranged, applications for habeas corpus, writ of ad quod damnum, &c. Mr. Warren, a young man, first in an able and profound speaker, and a clever gentleman, who is doing good service for the Liberals in our district. While with us he made many acquaintances and friends and left such an impression as will not doubt rebound to his future interest.

CRIMINAL COURT. Commenced here this morning with a very small docket. Should our criminals not be tried, our term will be of short duration.

OUR FAIR. The stockholders of our fair met a few days since and elected new officers. Dr. J. W. F. Barker being chosen President, Dr. J. M. Parke and A. S. Newell, Vice Presidents, Allen Jones, Jackson Cowan, David Bankin, J. H. Ingram, Directors; F. M. Ott, Secretary; Robert Wilson, Treasurer.

Two suits have been recently instituted against officers of the Association. The first, John H. Hall against R. N. Greaves, one of the marshals, for searching his horse during the fair for whisky, contrary to law. The other by R. A. Nunally against J. N. Kennedy, Robert Cheney and Andrew Gibson for assaulting, beating, bruising and wounding said Nunally's celebrated, double-gangling swing in a cruel inhuman manner, and showing him the gate which led from the fair grounds. Messrs. Kennedy, Cheney, and Gibson are not considered fighting men, but they do not doubt "Don Quixote like" men when they attacked Nunally's swing.

DAVID BOLLINS IN JAIL. David Bollins, who has been traveling through our county for the past few weeks, pretending to be a "clock fixer," was arrested and lodged in jail on Saturday evening last, charged with an attempt to abduct the child of a Mrs. Moulting.

NEW COAL MINES. James K. Burch and Lindsey Colyer have recently opened new coal mines within ten miles of Somerset, and are now delivering to our citizens a superior article of coal.

MARRIED. On the 19th inst., at the residence of the bride's mother near Somerset, by Elder J. Shaver, and on the same day, by the Rev. John C. Wynn, of the same place, Lewis Glover and Miss Rosa Cooper.

COUNTY COURT. Commonwealth against—Steeped up a warrant for breach of the peace for two years, and to pay thirty dollars per year for two years, for support of child.

MUNICIPALITY. Residing four miles south of Somerset, sold his farm a few days since to Maj. W. N. Thayer and Harvey Shann with a view to moving West soon.

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY. The agent at this place has sold tickets to the amount of near $500, and now the question is will we get our money back.

ALERT. CARSON & DODDS have opened this week the largest and most attractive stock of fancy goods, dry goods, notions, and "gadgets" of all kinds ever seen in this market.

Personal. We had the pleasure of meeting our handsome friend J. R. Green, of Hartfordville, the other day, in our town. Mr. Green is known as one of the best retail merchants in Central Kentucky, as all who know him will admit.

Our Wayne county friend, Pearson Miller, called upon us on his way from the great show at Louisville, and told us that Horace Greeley felt very much disappointed at not meeting us at the Galt House according to promise. Mr. Greeley must please excuse our non-performance of the agreement.

Mr. Rucker, of the Central Kentucky News, called upon us on Monday last. He assured us that the people of Garrard were giving him satisfactory encouragement. We hope they will rally to the support of the News, "a man."

Professor P. A. Towne, of Paris, Kentucky, the able and efficient co-worker of Dr. Henderson in the cause of education in the State, paid us a brief visit while en route for home from the mountain districts, where he has been laboring faithfully for the past few weeks.

Read This. All persons who intend going to Louisville should not fail to visit the great clothing, tailoring and furnishing goods house of J. L. Deppen, situated on the North East Corner of Fourth and Market streets. That your wants will be attended to, should you go, there you can infer from the fact that Mr. Deppen employs seven first class salesmen, and then three others of acknowledged ability, besides his back keeper, colorist and errand boys. Mr. James Smith, with J. Winter is connected with the house and would be pleased to see his many friends of Stanford and vicinity.

FRESH oysters served in any manner at all hours at Carson & Dods.

Male Seminary. Professor J. W. Paine, Jr., of Lexington, Virginia, the Principal of our Male Seminary, has arrived and will open his school on the hill next Monday. Mr. Paine comes well recommended by many prominent and well known public men and teachers, among whom are Governor John Letcher and Professor J. L. Campbell, W. and L. University and Superintendent Public Instruction. Mr. Paine looks like a man who "means business," and we hope the people of our town and county will give him proper encouragement, and we doubt not that he will build up such a school as will be a credit to himself and to the community.

The Trustees inform us that arrangements have been made with Mr. Paine to teach the district school here in connection with the Seminary, as there is no other house in which it could be taught. Both schools will therefore open on Monday next.

FROM HUSTONVILLE.

Correspondence of the Interior Journal.

Under the cheering influence of a gentle rain, we present our usual situation. And this is about all we can do. The unprecedented drought has told, and is telling on all our interests. The streams are dried up—our walks and springs almost exhausted; our pastures parched, while the arid earth casts up its clouds of dust, as if to smother itself from the burning rays of a merciless sun. In former years we could boast, but this season, a landscape unparalleled in its varying beauties, but now we have but the prospect of a vast Sahara without an oasis, for since we commenced writing the rain has ceased.

Property offered for sale last Saturday by G. I. Cooper was withdrawn for want of a sufficient bid. Mr. Cooper, offered on the same day was withdrawn for a similar reason. There is a rumor today, however, that Mr. Cooper is selling privately yesterday.

About 10 o'clock on Saturday night a young man of this place, named Merley, was shot on the street by George Carter. Merley was unarmed and not expecting an attack, when the other fired upon him. The first shot struck him on the breast but glanced, inflicting only a superficial wound. The second took effect in his hip, and from this he fell. A third shot fired while he was crawling on all fours, succeeded in getting to a house where he was cared for. Mr. Merley probed the wound in the hip to a depth of about four inches ranging downward, but failed to find the ball. The wounded man is doing well. Carter had not been arrested up to yesterday evening.

FAIRSTAFF. CARSON & DODDS sell confectioneries at city prices for cash.

Religions. Rev. J. A. Bigle will preach at the Presbyterian church on next Sabbath at 11 o'clock.

Rev. S. S. Leasing, of the M. E. church, will begin a protracted meeting at the court house in Lancaster to-night (Friday).

Rev. G. O. Barnes will preach at the court house, in Stanford, on next Sunday at 11 o'clock, A. M., and 4 P. M.

A protracted meeting will commence in the Baptist church in Danville on next Sunday, conducted by the pastor, assisted by Rev. C. F. Dohls, of Lexington.

Rev. A. D. Bash, pastor of the Baptist church, Stanford, will begin a series of meetings at the Baptist church in Crab Orchard on to-morrow (Saturday) morning.

Rev. A. D. Bash, pastor of the Baptist church at this place, immersed eleven persons, male and female in Logan's creek, last Lord's day evening, and three on yesterday evening. The meeting closed last Wednesday night, with fifteen additions. The church has been greatly revived here under the labors of Rev. C. F. Dohls, of Lexington.

Rev. John C. Young, a young Presbyterian minister, who started out with great promise as the pastor of Hancock Street Presbyterian church of Louisville, a few years ago, was expelled from the ministry and expelled from the church a few days ago. He is a son of the distinguished and lamented Rev. John C. Young, D. D., who was for many years the President of Central College, Danville, Ky.

THE place to buy cigars and tobacco, is at Carson & Dods' confectionery.

The Northern Railroad. We would hope on—however, if hope would do any good toward securing to our people the great benefits of the Northern railroad which is now in contemplation of erection. But hope alone is powerless to build it. Action, money, enterprise, perseverance long and unflinching, can alone build this great and much needed thoroughfare. Our citizens are not much moved by these things. We are simply going on our backs, thinking that because we get no road without any effort upon our part, we get this additional one with similar ease. Never was there a greater error in the minds of men. If we live here upon our backs, continuing ourselves with the hope that the road will be built through our section whether we work to that end or not, we will wake up to our common sense, and see that we are left high and dry, and other localities, have been more diligent, reaping the reward of merit. Fellow citizens, wake up to this long-suffering sleep, and let us see to it that nothing is waiting upon our part to secure the post road and enterprise which this Southern road would confer upon us.

Venerable Cure. VAUGHAN, W. A., Sept. 12, 1872.

TO COL. RICHARD HENNING: DEAR SIR:—I feel it my duty to certify to the great virtue of your Bethesda Spring Water in various ailments and more especially in those bilious incurable diseases of the kidneys called Diabetes and Bright's Disease of Albuminuria. My own case will illustrate its astonishing effects in Diabetes. I had been suffering over five years severely, passing large quantities of urine heavy with sugar; for the last six months I have been failing in strength and flesh, and consumed with the usual thirst and heat. I am now drinking the water at the spring freely for seven weeks, and feel that I am completely relieved; my thirst is gone; my urine is natural, and I have gained two pounds weight in weight, which is shown almost entirely in the solidity of my muscles. It is not probable that so short a use of the water will be permanent, and I shall continue to use it up to my home, as I am sure it will be transported without loss of virtue. The cure prompt relief has been given in Albuminuria, and in so many cases that I feel confident that it will cure all cases of that disease, and that it is a most valuable remedy for all cases of that disease.

It will be naturally expected that a remedy that acts so decidedly on an organ must have a favorable effect upon the system generally, and this is the case especially upon the nervous system.

With many thanks for your kindness, I remain, your obedient servant.

Logan's Fort.

On the 26th of next month (October) one hundred years will have passed away since Logan's Fort was built, within a short distance of our town. One hundred years! How much is embraced in this great period! Five successive generations will have passed away. Since then, a whole continent has grown people and great. The United States have grown from a handful of colonies to a mighty power in the earth. The wilderness of Kentucky has become a magnificent empire within itself, almost. At that time, this entire State was called Vincennes county, but a few years later the county of Kentucky. One vast extent of wild, unexplored forest and cane brake, extended from the Big Sandy to the Ohio; the Cumberland mountains to the Tennessee river. Where are the all the multiplied thousands who have successively inhabited our borders? The Indian and the buffalo, the elk and the deer, have successively passed away with them. Railroads, turnpikes, steamboats and telegraphs have been brought to bear upon the rapid march of civilization and progress. The old Fort itself is gone. Not the slightest trace of its former existence can be found. Only the unchanging spot of earth—the easelously flowing spring that runs from under the hill upon which it built—the little creek that would kneel hand by, where the city square came in the darkness of night to watch for opening into the Fort, that they might scalp the few brave pioneers there, remain of all the former surroundings. Would it not be proper for our whole people of Lincoln county to make a holiday of the approaching centennial, and suitably celebrate the day? It is a beautiful spot upon which to assemble. The grassy lawns and shady woodlands, the cool, delicious springs which still flow to quench the thirst of man, they flowed one hundred years ago to quench the thirst of the chief of the Kentucky and his pale faced foe; afford a pleasant retreat for those who would keep green memory and teach their children the tribulations and trials of their early ancestry.

Just over the path-way from the Fort to the spring, where the maiden came from water amid the danger of being pierced with arrows from the red man's bow, the iron rails of commerce cross, and the wild war-whoop of the heartless savage has given way to the screams of the locomotive's whistle.

Let us, friends, duly celebrate this

The Step-Mother.

"I am afraid you are not sufficiently protected from the night air my love; perhaps you had better wear this light shawl over your shoulders."

"I shall most assuredly do nothing of the sort, Mrs. Crampfort."

Olivia Crampfort stood on the terrace in front of the door, looking like a laughing young princess, in her white dress, with pearls glowing softly through the net work of her golden hair. She was hardly fifteen, with violet gray eyes, cheeks flushed with the bluest bloom, and a mouth as sweetly curved as that of Diana of Ephesus.

Half way down the steps, with one light hand resting on the marble rail, stood Mrs. Crampfort, her young step-mother. It would be difficult to imagine two styles of beauty more widely different than those of Olivia and her father's wife. The latter was tall and largely moulded, with heavy coils of magnificent chestnut hair, brimmed skin, and eyes whose melting, misty darkness had a purplish-gleam in their liquid depths. Her dress was of crimson silk, draped with rich black lace, and the only ornament in her hair was the gold comb that fastened its luxuriance. She paused abruptly, as Olivia spoke the short contemptuous, quick sentences, while the deep scarlet rose to her ordinary pale cheek.

"Olivia—my daughter!"

"I am not your daughter, Mrs. Crampfort, said Olivia, haughtily, "nor shall I allow myself to be dictated to by a step-mother. And once for all those little hypocritical airs of affection, whatever effects they may produce on my father, are thrown away on me!"

She walked away down the broad path, her lips curled, and her face coldly scornful, while Mrs. Crampfort still stood leaning against the marble balustrade holding her hands to her heart, as if Olivia's words had been poisoned arrows that were rankling there.

"Will she never learn to love me?" thought the young step-mother. Shall I never win the entrance to her heart? Oh, if she but knew how truly I love her, she would not—yet!" The tears glittered in Mrs. Crampfort's lovely dark eyes as she turned to the house, where only Olivia's extravagant cast a shadow on her bright life.

Edward Crampfort was sitting, reading by the library window, as his wife came slowly in. He was a tall, handsome man, with a few silver threads sprinkled in his hair, though he had scarcely reached middle age, and large blue eyes, where the expression seemed perpetually to vary, and as he looked up to the well known sound of the most idolatrous tenderness.

Edward Crampfort was sitting, reading by the library window, as his wife came slowly in. He was a tall, handsome man, with a few silver threads sprinkled in his hair, though he had scarcely reached middle age, and large blue eyes, where the expression seemed perpetually to vary, and as he looked up to the well known sound of the most idolatrous tenderness.

"You look grave, Madeline."

"Do!" She tried to smile, but the tears came instead, as she sat down beside him on the low stool.

"Madeline, my dear one, what has happened to give you?"

"Oh, Edward!" she sobbed, if I could but learn the secret of Olivia's love."

The father's broad forehead darkened with a stern shadow.

"Has she dared to be impertinent to you, Madeline? If she has—"

"Oh, no, no!" hurriedly interposed Mrs. Crampfort, with the color rising to her temples. "Pray do not draw any such inferences from my careless words. Only, dearest, I love her so dearly, and I cannot win a single tender word or glance from her. I would cherish her so devotedly would she but allow me. There is so much that is winning and noble about her that I cannot but feel her estrangement most acutely."

"Madeline," said Mr. Crampfort, after a moment's grave meditation, "I think I shall decide to send Olivia to boarding-school until she can learn on her return home, to appreciate your qualities as they deserve. It will be a severe lesson, but I think she needs it."

"Not for the world, Edward!" eagerly pleaded Mrs. Crampfort. "For my sake, dearest, let us strive longer yet to win her heart. I know how she dreads the very idea of a boarding school. She is too good, too noble, too ingenious to be subjected to the trials that she would encounter there."

"If it is to you, Madeline," said her husband tenderly, "but you must let me talk to her firmly on the matter."

"Not a word, Edward!" cried Mrs. Crampfort. "If I am ever to penetrate into the depth of her affection, it must be by my own efforts. And—"

She paused, for at that instant a servant entered to request Mr. Crampfort's attendance in the reception room. And when she was left alone, she sat gazing out into the twilight, with a moisture in her eyes that made quivering rings around the first pale stars, whose light was beginning to glow in the purple horizon.

"If she would once call me by the sweet name of mother," broke almost involuntarily from her lips.

"Mother!"

Was it a tremulous echo of her own words, or was it an actual utterance spoken close to her?

"Mother! my darling mother!"

Mrs. Crampfort clasped the slender young figure close to her bosom, almost fearing it was a dream.

"I have heard you and papa talking," said Olivia, "Oh, mother it seemed as if a veil fell from my eyes. People have been trying to distrust you—to look on you as a schemer, as a woman who would do anything to win my father's love. But I know you, and I know your heart. I have never loved you so dearly as I do now. I shall follow you wherever you go."

and came back to get it," whispered Olivia. "Oh, how glad I am that I passed at the sound of your voice! Dearest Mother, I know how to cherish and love you now. I have been wild and willful, but it has been for the last time. Love me, for indeed, indeed, I love you."

When Edward Crampfort reentered the library he found Olivia kneeling at Madeline's side, her head resting on her step-mother's lap, while Madeline's jeweled fingers strayed slowly through the young girl's golden hair. He paused in astonishment; but his wife looked up with a radiant smile saying:

"Dear Edward, I have found a daughter. She called me 'mother,' at last."

For Madeline's affection had conquered finally.

Progress of Agriculture During the Last Decade.

Our increase in all the chief articles of agricultural produce, as shown by the census report, is something enormous. Wine has increased fourteen-fold since 1850, and nearly doubled in the last decade, California being its chief producer. Hops have increased seven-fold in the same time, and more than doubled in the last ten years, New York growing two-thirds of the whole crop.

Barley has increased six-fold. Flax six-fold, and flaxseed trebled. Wheat trebled, and oats doubled. Irish potatoes have nearly increased one-third, and sweet potatoes one-half.

Live-stock have trebled in value, and now amount to the handsome total of one thousand five hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars, or an average of nearly two hundred dollars for every family in the nation.

Animals slaughtered have nearly quadrupled in value, now amounting to four hundred millions of dollars annually. Wool has increased from sixty to one hundred millions of pounds.

Cotton is half a million bales above what it was in 1850, and three-fifths of its amount in 1860.

In only one instance is there a decrease of an important product, and that is in Indian corn, which falls short of the amount reported in 1860 by seventy-eight millions of bushels, or ten per cent on the whole.

In some lesser products, however, the decrease is considerable. Silk cocoons are only a third of their former amount, hemp a sixth, peas, beans and rice about a third each. Buckwheat has decreased from seventeen millions of bushels to nine, and rye from twenty-one millions of bushels to six.

Lost—Heavy Reward Offered.

On or about the first of August the subscriber lost in North Carolina 15,000 votes that he obtained in 1868. He also lost 10,000 which he remembers to have had there last year on the day of the election. At the same time he lost his friend John Pool, United States Senator, and by a combination of misfortunes, lost the State Senate and House of Representatives. It is not sure whether he is to count the Governor among his other losses, but fears in the end it will go to turn out. The things alluded to were extremely valuable to the subscriber, as he was about to set out on a political tour throughout the Union, and he greatly misses the comfort they inspired. He has made every effort to recover these valuables, but so far without avail. He has caused guns to be fired all over the Union to apprise the people of his loss, and to induce them to set out in search of the missing U. S. Senator, Legislature, majorities, and so forth. Any information that will lead to the recovery of the above said articles will be gratefully received and liberally rewarded by me at Long Branch, or at the Thousand Islands on the St. Lawrence or by Mr. Boutwell, the Secretary of the Treasury, at Washington, or by the chairman of my Committee in New York.

Inhuman Treatment.

Thomas Farwell, one of the brutal keepers in the Ward's Island Lunatic Asylum, has been formally charged with causing or hastening the death of two patients in that institution. The verdicts of the coroner's jury in these two cases, yesterday, were conclusive on the points made by the Tribune. This is a dreadful story of savagery and oppression of the defenceless insane which is brought by the investigation, disclosures so far brought to light, indicate that it was high time that the veil of secrecy be torn aside from a system so generally wicked as the treatment of the insane in lunatic asylums.—Tribune.

We desire to say a word about the above, and similar cases. The poor insane are always helpless. They are as much so as an infant a week old only, and the slightest duty of the same is to see that they are not treated with that brutality which too often attends their confinement. Every asylum, wherever located needs looking after. No one is there to offer resistance, or to report misconduct on the part of the keepers and nurses. The duty of the Legislature is to appoint inspectors of known humanity; men who will not make a frolic of the examination, and go there to eat a grand dinner copper-drink fine wine—and then go away to fix up a report that is well in that department. No. Let them be such men as will report facts. Watch every body, and tell the world precisely how the poor demoralized creatures are treated.—[Ed.]

ANTS are so destructive to fruit-trees and vines, that any way of getting rid of them is interesting. An excellent method to destroy them is said to be that of sprinkling a saucer full of sweet oil up to the brim in the ground. If this is done the ants are plentiful, in a short time the saucer will be found full of these creatures, all subsided in the oil.

GENERAL HAYS, in a speech in New York recently, claimed the title of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia, Old Virginia, Tennessee and Arkansas as sure for Greeley.

ELDER H. T. ANDERSON, of the Christian Church, is lying at the point of death at his home in Washington.

GENS OF THOUGHT.

Foolish spending is the father of poverty. Faithfulness and sincerity are the highest of things. After praying to God not to lead you into temptation, do not throw yourself into it. Misery and vice travel in pairs; and they always prefer to burrow underground as they go. Reverence the old, but meet the new with a warm heart. Cherish no prejudice against names unknown to you. A promise should be given with caution, kept with care. It should be made with the heart and remembered with the head. True piety is not a remorse, but a cheerful thing; whilst it makes us joyful, it delivers us from frivolity; yet it causes us to be pleasant. There are emotions that one never could put into words without the danger of being ridiculous. Analysis is the death of sentiment. He that has inherited the love of God what has the world more to give him? What can the world reach to take from him? He has the chief thing already. There is workroom of bitterness in nearly all the sweets of life; but it would not seem half so bitter if we didn't stop to weigh, separate and analyze, to find out just how bitter it is. It is better to see our friends through a mist than through a microscope. Too clear perceptions are as disadvantageous to the life of our affections as they are advantageous to our worldly prosperity. With the prayer "Lead me not into temptation" on our lip, choose for the right and God, though the choice make you confront a solid rock. God shall render the rock accessible, and cover it with brighter greenness, and make it more radiant with flowers. Behind the mountains there live people, too. Be modest; as yet you have discovered and thought nothing which others have not thought and discovered before you. And even if you have done so, regard it as a gift from above, which you have got to share with others.

Cholera Coning.

We clip the following information from the New York Tribune of recent date. Americans cannot be too well on their guard concerning this dreadful scourge which sweeps multiplied thousands to their graves during its stay. Let every town, city, village, hamlet and country dwelling, be thoroughly cleaned now, as an ounce of preventive is worth a pound of cure. Don't wait until next year, and until the first ship lands the disease on our shore. Bokhara seems to have taken the cholera from Persia, and the dreadful scourge is devastating the population of that Province. Situated in Central Asia and in the route of the caravans which traverse the country, Bokhara is likely to help spread the pestilence. The number of deaths—one thousand daily—is possibly exaggerated.
